Diversity and inclusion at the UN

Lynda.com video of the month:

Global Perspectives on the Future of Work

- The United Nations launched a new campaign to promote tolerance, respect and dignity across the world.
- A video on unconscious bias by the International Organization for Migration on how people are drawn to people they perceive as similar to themselves.
- The UN System Staff College assessed the experiences and learning of staff from five UN entities (UNAIDS, UN Cares, UNDP, UNDSS and UNHCR), who have hands-on experience in "perceived cultural differences within a team". For more information, contact UNOMS at

"Perceived Cultural Differences Within a Team"

A reminder to also check out resources on the

Global Perspectives on the Future of Work workshop

- Facilitated by the United Nations Alliance of Civilization (UNAOC), in partnership with United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and Harvard University's Project Implicit, the workshop aimed to raise awareness about unconscious bias and how it affects decision-making processes.
- Delphin Subea, an Assistant Humanitarian Affairs Officer for OCHA, who is stationed in the Democratic Republic of Congo, shared his personal experience of dealing with cultural differences and the importance of understanding and respecting cultural diversity.
- "The workshop was particularly relevant for me as I work in a multicultural environment and it helped me to recognize my own biases and how they can influence my interactions with colleagues from different backgrounds."

"How to Unleash Your Full Potential In A Global Workplace"

- Facilitated by the International Labour Organization (ILO) to help participants develop strategies for managing diversity and inclusion in the workplace.
- Emphasized the importance of creating inclusive workplaces that recognize and value diversity.

"International Day of Yoga: Celebrating Diversity and Inclusion"

- A panel discussion with experts from various UN agencies discussing the significance of yoga in promoting diversity and inclusion.

"Fostering Inclusive Workplaces"

- A presentation on best practices for creating inclusive work environments and strategies for managing diversity.

Lynda.com video of the month:

Global Perspectives on the Future of Work

- Facilitated by the United Nations Alliance of Civilization (UNAOC), in partnership with United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and Harvard University's Project Implicit, the workshop aimed to raise awareness about unconscious bias and how it affects decision-making processes.
- Delphin Subea, an Assistant Humanitarian Affairs Officer for OCHA, who is stationed in the Democratic Republic of Congo, shared his personal experience of dealing with cultural differences and the importance of understanding and respecting cultural diversity.
- "The workshop was particularly relevant for me as I work in a multicultural environment and it helped me to recognize my own biases and how they can influence my interactions with colleagues from different backgrounds."

"Perceived Cultural Differences Within a Team"

A reminder to also check out resources on the

Global Perspectives on the Future of Work workshop

- Facilitated by the United Nations Alliance of Civilization (UNAOC), in partnership with United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and Harvard University's Project Implicit, the workshop aimed to raise awareness about unconscious bias and how it affects decision-making processes.
- Delphin Subea, an Assistant Humanitarian Affairs Officer for OCHA, who is stationed in the Democratic Republic of Congo, shared his personal experience of dealing with cultural differences and the importance of understanding and respecting cultural diversity.
- "The workshop was particularly relevant for me as I work in a multicultural environment and it helped me to recognize my own biases and how they can influence my interactions with colleagues from different backgrounds."

"International Day of Yoga: Celebrating Diversity and Inclusion"

- A panel discussion with experts from various UN agencies discussing the significance of yoga in promoting diversity and inclusion.

"Fostering Inclusive Workplaces"

- A presentation on best practices for creating inclusive work environments and strategies for managing diversity.