Are you a continuous learner? Developing a learning mindset means that you understand challenges as opportunities to grow and that learning comes naturally to you. Just like any other skill, you need to practice it regularly to get good at it—no one ever learned a new skill without practicing it! Whether you are already a lifelong learner or get out of your "reading zone"! Get inspired by people's stories of learning and oriented learners towards action, encouraging them to take their renewed commitment to diversity and inclusion into their individual workplaces.

Lynda.com video of the month: Learning Agility

In this 37-minute video, Gary A. Bolles, lecturer and cofounder of eParachute, explains how to make a learning wish list, putting priorities in order and staying on track with your learning goals.

MAY 2018

UN Webcast. Staff members nearing retirement are invited and encouraged to attend. The event will also be open to those interested in separation-related information. The Pre-retirement seminar will inform staff about the steps they need to take and provide them with the opportunity to ask questions. The topics being discussed include pensions, after service health insurance (ASHI), HR procedures, taxation and other support available. If you want to register for the Pre-retirement Seminar, go to Inspira and search for: LMS-1538-16.
